Virginia Guilbeau awaiting transfer to penitentiary

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Hancock County resident Virginia Guilbeau is being held in the Hancock County Jail awaiting a transfer to the Mississippi State Penitentiary in Parchman.

Guilbeau was waiting at the sheriff's office Wednesday when the Mississippi Supreme Court ruled on her appeal and affirmed the 15-year prison sentence. Ronald Peterson, Hancock County sheriff said Wednesday afternoon.

She was found guilty in March 1985 of possession and intent to distribute 5,100 pounds of marijuana seized at her Kiln residence in 1984.

A 20-year sentence was reduced to 15 years with five years suspended. She was sentenced April 5, 1985 in Hancock County Circuit Court by Judge Kosta Vlahos, Peterson added.

In addition to the 20-year she was also fined $150,000.

A nine-men, three-women jury unanimously found Guilbeau guilty after just two hours of deliberation following the four-day trial.

Her son, Gregory Ladner, pleaded guilty to the charge of possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute prior to Guilbeau's trial. He received a 25-year sentence with five years suspended and a $25,000 fine.

Also arrested in connection with the incident were Ivan Martinez and Lozardo Raoul Rojas.

In Guilbeau's trial, Drug Enforcement Administration Special Agent James Beaupre testified while involved in an undercover operation, he had been hired by Ladner and Martinez to transport 5,100 pounds of marijuana from McAllen, Texas to Hancock County.

Another agent Dennis Bryant testified he had been instructed by Martinez to drive a rental truck containing the marijuana to Hancock County and call a Kiln telephone number listed to Guilbeau, to arrange for someone to meet him at the Welcome Center in Hancock County.

Bryant also said at the Welcome Center he had been approached by Guilbeau and had turned the keys over to her when she showed him a piece of paper containing a description of the truck including the license plate number.

However during Ladner's testimony he stated Guilbeau had not been aware of the contents of the rental truck and had been told it contained only furniture for a summer house adjacent her residence on Fire Tower Road.

INVASION FROM SPACE?—George Sullivan, an employee of Roy Anderson Construction, presents an alien appearance in his helmet, face shield and heavy gloves as he sandblasts the sidewalk in front of the main entrance to the new Hancock County Justice Facility. The new jail, financed through a $2.5 million bond issue, is scheduled to be open for public tours after parking lots and accessways are paved and wiring and painting are completed inside. ## Interim report presented by January Grand Jury

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County January Grand Jury has turned in an interim report to Circuit Judge Frank Alexander.

The report was presented to the judge Wednesday morning, 13 working days after the Grand Jury was empaneled on Jan. 12.

Deputy Circuit Clerk Pam Metzler said the Grand Jury is scheduled to be back in session on Feb. 4.

The interim report states that the Grand Jurors heard 56 cases and returned 50 indictments. One case was left pending for consideration by the next Grand Jury and five cases resulted in no indictments.

Six recommendations were presented in the report, including two dealing with law enforcement, three dealing with public facilities and one regarding the unit system.

The Grand Jury recommended that County Maintenance Superintendent Bill Johnson report to the next grand jury, scheduled for July, on the progress and financial status of county maintenance under the unit system during the first half of the 1987 fiscal year.

In one of the law enforcement-related recommendations, the Grand Jury asked for funds seized from illegal activities be used to purchase electronic surveillance equipment for use by local law enforcement agencies.

The Grand Jurors also recommended that the Hancock County Board of Supervisors send letters of commendation to various Louisiana law enforcement agencies in recognition of their assistance to the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

The three agencies mentioned in the recommendations on facilities include the Hancock County Welfare Department, Hancock County School District and Hancock Medical Center.

The Grand Jury reported that the Welfare Department needs adequate facilities and recommended that the board of supervisors take immediate action on the matter. That recommendation was also included in two Grand Jury reports last year.

A second recommendation asked that Superintendent of Hancock County Schools Terrell Randolph be permitted to pursue plans for construction of the new school facility on the land donated at Highway 688 off Wilson Road.

The Grand Jury also recommended the Hancock General Hospital Building be sold and the proceeds be used for Hancock Medical Center, which is scheduled to open in February, if weather permits the paving of accessways and parking lots.

The complete text of the interim report follows:

Louisiana man charged with 8 counts of prescription forgery

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Acting on a tip from Drug Enforcement Administration in New Orleans, Hancock County law enforcement officers arrested Larry M. Jacob, 30, of Metairie, La. for prescription forgery.

Jacob was charged with eight counts of prescription forgery after being arrested in Hancock County, Criminal Investigator Alvin Ladner said Wednesday.

"He had three prescriptions in his possession and an investigation revealed he had passed five forged prescriptions in the county," Ladner said.

There were two forged prescriptions each for percanadan, seconal, tussionex and dilauid, he continued.

The prescriptions were forged on a New Orleans Veteran's Administration Hospital prescription pad.

When Jacob was arrested Tuesday a blank prescription pad and a doctor's Drug Enforcement Administration number (needed to write prescriptions) was found in possession.

Jacob is currently being held in the Hancock County Jail under a $10,000 bond.

Central county barn nearing completion

BY DENA BISNETTE
Hancock County's central barn in Kiln is scheduled to be ready for use Friday and County Maintenance

Superintendent Bill Johnson says he expects the new facility to play a large part in reducing equipment maintenance costs.

The barn, which costs about $79,400, is a metal building being constructed by Leon C. Miles, Inc. The facility is located on Highway 43 next to the Kiln Community Center and the Beat Four ballpark.

Johnson, who is temporarily using the community center as a base for county road and bridge maintenance operations, said he hopes to be able to move into the barn Friday if weather problems do not delay completion of exterior work and utilities can be connected.

The contractor has been particularly cooperative in allowing the county to use the maintenance areas while construction work is being completed, Johnson added.

In addition to maintenance areas with roofs high enough to allow dump truck bodies to be raised, the building contains office, storage and restroom facilities.

The parking lot is not paved yet, but Johnson reported work remains to be authorized by the board of supervisors.

The barn project, approved shortly after the county went under the unit system Oct. 1, was turned over to Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca by unanimous consent of the board.

great cry that they are violating the law, and I think they're bending over backward to please the community," said Gex.

Also expected to be attending Thursday's meeting is Fred Wagner, the architect selected to carry out the district's long-term building program.

Information released at a public forum last week regarding the proposal selected for the building program and the present state of the district's facilities will be repeated Thursday, Oge said.

The proposal selected by board members earlier this month is "what I consider both the option that best serves our students and is most efficient," the superintendent.

That proposal would add 30 classrooms to Bay Senior High, which would then be turned into a high school-junior high complex for grades seven through 12.

Also proposed for the complex are a branch library, physical education facility, auditorium, band hall, cafeteria expansion, office and testing areas, and classrooms for children with special needs.

Air conditioning and reconitioning is proposed for the Bay Junior High School building, which would become a middle school for fourth, fifth and sixth graders.

North Bay Elementary would be renovated to some extent and enrollment would be limited to 400 students from kindergarten through third grade.

The remaining students in those grades would attend Waveland Elementary School, which would be enlarged.

Oge called the proposal the "most educationally sound proposal" offered.

The other proposal called for the construction of a new high school and conversion of the present Bay Senior High School to a sixth, seventh and eighth grade junior high.

The present junior high, under

Zoning board asks for fire inspections

BY DENA BERNETTE
The Waveland Zoning Board has requested that Waveland Fire Chief David Garcia and City Building Inspector Emile Henley inspect apartment complexes in the Waveland Avenue area that allegedly lack fire escapes.

The board made the decision after a brief discussion of complaints board members had received.

According to Board Chairman Charles Dickson, the complaints concerned mostly second floor apartments without fire escapes on rear balconies.

Dickson said the city has a building code and that Garcia and Henley may have to find out what method can be used to enforce that code.

Garcia said Wednesday he had not yet received a formal request on the matter from the zoning board.

Zoning board recommendations are not final until approved by the Waveland Board of Aldermen, which meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

In other business, the zoning board approved a recommendation for two side yard variances for James Seuzeneau.

The variances will reduce the required 10-foot side yard to seven feet on one side and nine feet on the other side, allowing Seuzeneau to place a single family residence on his property.

The board also recommended a special variance for property owned by Carroll J. Comeaux and located in area originally planned as a subdivision.

Dickson said the special variance would be needed because the property surrounding the Comeaux lots has been sold and the subdivision plans cancelled.

Professional nutritionists offer preventative guidelines for women

HATTIESBURG—A group of professional nutritionists concerned with the health of modern women has released a set of 14 nutrition guidelines aimed at preventing illness.

The American Dietetic Association's nutrition recommendations for women, released last month, put more emphasis on preventing sickness, according to Dr. Kathleen Yadrick, an assistant professor of institution administration at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Yadrick said a study of women's nutritional needs was initiated because "Women typically have an influence over what families eat—especially children; as they form their food habits early in life."

"The recommendations are appropriate for any individual," Yadrick said, adding, "There is more emphasis on cutting down on the foods that are less appropriate—limiting fat intake, choosing complex carbohydrates, eating less sugar and more fiber."

"Many adults don't get as much calcium as they need," she added. "In the past, only two servings of calcium-rich foods were called for each day. Now, it's three or four recommended daily servings that may be necessary as a preventive measure to osteoporosis."

The nutrition guidelines, developed by a panel of scientific experts along with an ADA task force, represent a major effort at addressing the nutritional and health promotion needs of American women of all ages through one set of recommendations," noted Yadrick, who joined the USM faculty in November.

Yadrick said the effort is designed to enhance good health, feeling good and preventing disease in the future.

"Of course," she added, "women need to eat a variety of foods every day, in addition to exercising, in order to maintain a healthy body weight."

Yadrick maintained many women are unrealistic in determining what their proper weight should be. "The 'healthy body weight' may not always correspond to perception of the 'ideal body weight,'" she said.

Weight loss may be obtained using the "10-calorie rule," a new concept that estimates proper daily caloric intake by multiplying body weight by 10. If, for example, a 125-pound woman wants to lose weight and keep it off, Yadrick said she should not consume less than 1,250 calories each day. "This may take a little longer but it is the safe way to lose weight and keep it off," she contended.

The ADA recommendations include:

1. Eat a variety of foods from all major food groups—including three to four low-fat servings of dairy foods, two low-fat servings of meats or meat alternates, four servings of vegetables or fruits and four servings of whole grain breads or cereals.

2. Maintain a healthy body weight. For adults to lose weight safely and effectively, they should not go below 10 calories per pound of present weight and should not skip meals. Physical activity should be increased. To gain weight, increase caloric intake and exercise in moderation.

3. Exercise regularly (at least three days per week).

4. Limit total fat to no more than one-third of daily calories. Select a variety of fat sources: saturated, polyunsaturated or monounsaturated. Limit non-food group foods such as margarine, butter, cooking oils, salad dressings, cookies, cakes and cream. Choose low-fat selections of meat and milk food groups.

5. Eat at least one-half of daily calories from carbohydrates. Select complex carbohydrates such as beans, peas, pasta, vegetables, nuts and seeds.

6. Eat a variety of fiber-rich foods. Make daily selections from fresh fruits with skin, vegetables, legumes (navy, pinto and kidney beans) and whole grains (brown rice, oatmeal, oat and wheat bran). Increase intake of fiber gradually and avoid excess fiber intake, especially from one source.

7. Include three to four daily servings of calcium-rich foods. Consume low-fat milk, yogurt or cheese. Increase milk in cooking. Eat broccoli, sardines with bones, canned salmon with bones and collard greens.

8. Include plenty of iron-rich foods. Make daily selections from lean meat, liver, poultry, eggs, and kidney beans, spinach, leafy green vegetables, and enriched and whole-grain breads or cereals.

9. Limit intake of salt and sodium-containing foods. Limit intake of salt added to food preparation as well as use of saltshaker. Watch food labels to avoid monosodium glutamate, sodium bicarbonate, sodium citrate and other sodium sources.

10. Rely on foods for necessary nutrients, using vitamin and mineral supplements only under specific circumstances.

11. If you drink, limit alcohol intake to one to two drinks daily.

12. Avoid smoking.

13. Adjust diet, exercise and other health promotional behaviors to correspond with an individual's own identified risk factors. Diet is only one risk factor; heredity, lifestyle and environment are others. Consult a medical physician for the answers to risk factor questions.

14. If you have questions about the adequacy of your diet, consult a registered dietitian.

1987 farmers home emergency loans tied to crop insurance

Farmers seeking disaster emergency loans from the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) for 1987 losses will need to have crop insurance if it is available, FmHA State Director John H. Arthur said today.

"All family-size farmers should be aware that a newly-effective provision of the 1985 farm bill prohibits our making emergency loans for crop losses that could have been insured under multiple-peril crop insurance programs sponsored by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC)," Mr. Arthur said.

"Therefore, I urge every family-size farmer in the State of Mississippi to seriously take into account this new relationship between insurance coverage and emergency-loan eligibility."

Federally-subsidized multiple-peril crop insurance is now available for all wheat, corn, barley, grain sorghum, oats, upland cotton and rice, plus an additional 35 specialty crops in most growing areas. The government subsidy reduces the program costs by about 50 percent, Mr. Arthur said, making crop insurance a worthwhile option to consider regardless of the newly-required tie-in with emergency loan eligibility.

If a farmer obtains the insurance required, and if the value of his crop loss is still 30 percent or more after the insurance payment, the operation will be eligible for consideration for an emergency loan.

Effective in January, the new requirement will affect crops planted in 1987, and thus will not affect winter wheat or other winter-seeded crops planted in 1986 and harvested in 1987. Insurance must be multiple-peril, covering most forms of disaster, rather than hail-only.

The closing date for insurance sales on spring-planted crops in Mississippi is March 31. Because of these dates and the fact that a prevented-planting endorsement for eligible crops must be elected 45 days prior to sales closing, Mr. Arthur urged farmers to contact their local insurance agents promptly.

Information is also available at FCIC field offices and through most county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Quotables by Cuevas

On Saturday, we witnessed a special group of young people involved in cleaning up the beach front in Clermont Harbor.

The group we are speaking about is the Clermont Harbor Youth Corps, a new organization that is the brainchild of Ina Cranmer and Christine Luxich.

The primary reason for the formation of the group, according to Mrs. Cranmer, was to give the kids something to do, and also something beneficial to their community.

There were some 15 youngsters and three adults who collected some 91 large bags of debris from the area in only four and one-half hours.

The students also reported they try to clean up the street areas around their homes after school hours.

This is a very fine enterprise, and one which should be copied in the other neighborhoods of our county.

On the side of businessmen, The Paddle Wheel Restaurant even donated a lunch to the group of students after the cleanup.

Supervisor Bert Courregé arranged to have a large dump truck parked at the Clermont Harbor Fire Station for the group to place their collections.

It is hoped other parents will form such organizations in their neighborhoods and show everyone the importance of having a litter-free area.

Youngsters need something to do, and this could be a very good venture.

The Hancock County Food Pantry has been in service since May of last year and has offered a wonderful service to our community.

Just think, through December 1986, some 965 people have been helped by the Food Pantry.

The Food Pantry depends upon the donations from churches, businesses, and individuals in the community.

The month of February has been designated as "Meat Month" by the organization.

A special plea is being made for such items as canned meats, tuna, chicken, beef stew, and even chili, as all of these foods help to fill up hungry children.

We hope everyone will do their part in supporting the Food Pantry.

The Food Pantry is located at the Civil Defense office in the Valena C. Jones Complex, Old Spanish Trail and Booker Street, Bay St. Louis.

Legislative Report

From Mississippi Reporting Service

By Ellen Ann Fentress

A new Mississippi constitution and a nickel-a-gallon gasoline tax highlighted last week at the Mississippi Legislature.

The Senate cornered the headlines produced at the Capitol for the week, since the House took no major roll call votes.

The Senate endorsed 43-4 a November referendum that would trigger a 1988 constitutional convention if voters approve it. However, before calling for the referendum, senators voted 29-20 to allow voters to approve any new state constitution on an article-by-article basis instead of as a total package.

The measure still requires House approval before going into effect, and predictions are that the measure will face rough going in the House Constitution Committee.

House Constitution Committee Chairman Charlie Capps of Cleveland reported that an informal poll of his 15-member committee showed nine in opposition to such a referendum. The House panel is expected to consider the Senate-passed proposal this week.

Earlier in the week, the Senate agreed 36-13 to a $1.5 billion, 12-year highway building plan. The legislation provides for 1,054 miles of road construction funded through a five-cent a gallon tax on motor fuels.

Roads to be improved under the plan are U.S. 49, U.S. 61, U.S. 45, U.S. 45A, U.S. 82, U.S. 72, U.S. 84, U.S. 90, Miss. 25 and Miss. 302.

Senators rejected 34-15 hinging the tax on a voter referendum and turned down 30-12 adding the governor and the lieutenant governor to the current three-member elected highway commission.

Before giving final approval, senators did agree to earmark .05 percent of the sales tax on fuels to return to the cities and counties where the gas was purchased. The change was expected to generate an estimated $7 to $9 million for local governments.

Senate Bills
There were two major actions in the Senate this week. The first was the passage of the Highway Bill - SB 2289. This bill placed a five-cent tax on gasoline with the revenue from the tax going for highway improvement. It passed by a vote of 36 - 13.

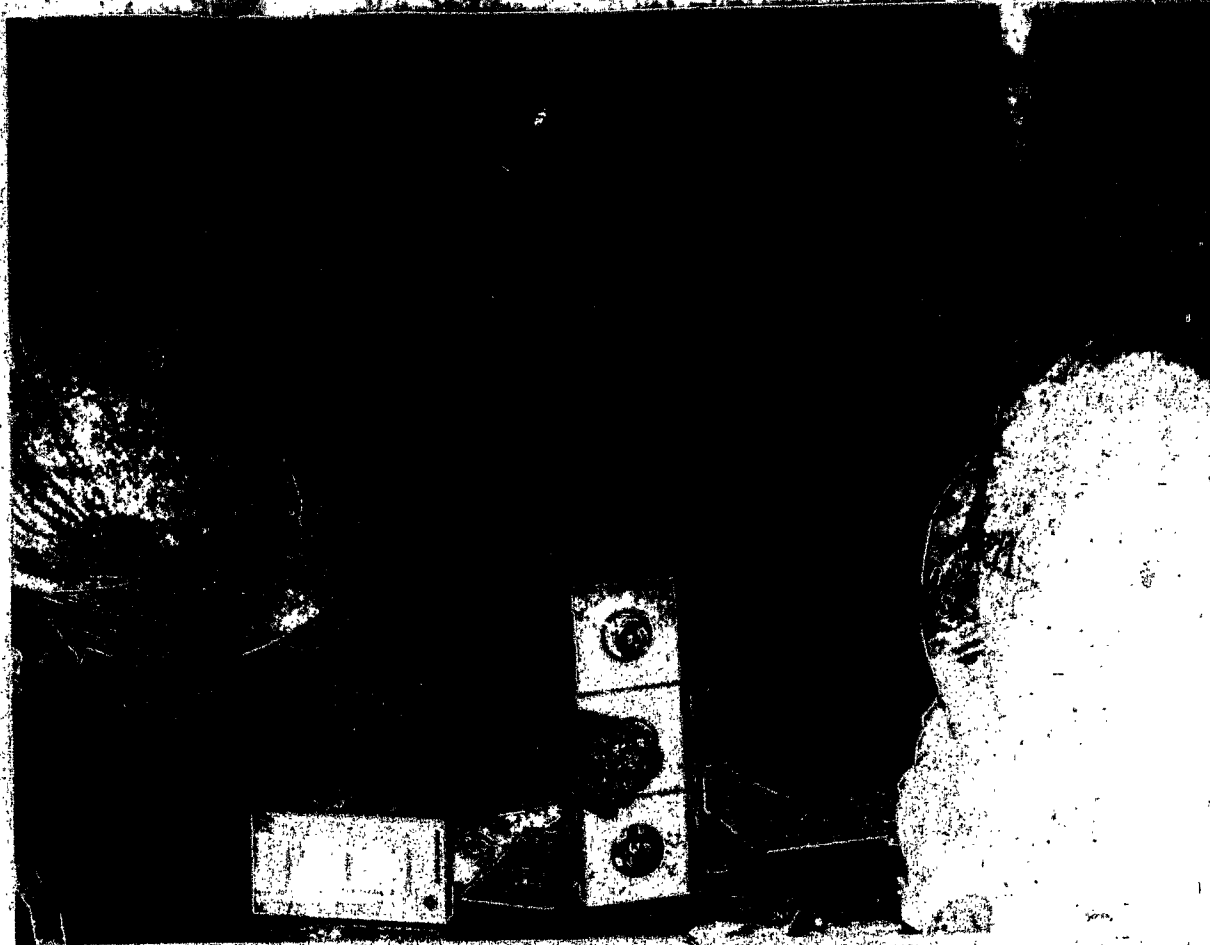

Gene Taylor, Nay; Martin Smith, Yea.

Two significant amendments were also voted on. The first proposed restructuring the highway commission and would have provided that the Governor and Lieutenant Governor would have served on the commission. It failed by a vote of 12 - 38.

Senate Bill 2229 calls for a referendum on calling a state constitutional convention. The bill that would put

20th Century secession of south from north might work in Mississippi

January 23, 1987

Dear Sirs,

We on the Gulf Coast have suffered long enough at the hands of an unresponsive state government. Though we live in the single most prosperous and populated area of this state, we are all but neglected when the north Mississippi nabobs convene annually in Jackson.

It seems we are forgotten in all things save taxation, which the state courtously remembers to levy on us. We get the leftovers of state services, which given this state is really saying something. We are prohibited by the rustic moralists of the Delta, and the north, from deciding issues such as gambling, a lottery, and many others, by local preference. We labor with an antediluvian constitution and legal system which not only complicates our lives but actually drives business away.

Our only hope to escape from these deplorable conditions is to secede from the state. There is ample legal and historical precedent for such a move. The present states of Vermont, Maine and West Virginia were all formed from other states.

The legal means to do this was simply an act of congress admitting these states into the union. The parent states in no case had any say about the matter. Certainly, this would be no easy task and would require some time and effort. The attempt though would make the rest of the state realize our importance and perhaps help solve some of our problems.

If we were successful, we would have our own state. Indeed we could invite our neighbors in the "Florida parishes" of Louisiana, the "Panhandle counties" of Florida, and the coastal counties of Alabama to join with us and reconstitute the old Spanish province of West Florida, this time as a state of the Union, as almost happened in 1819.

The name West Florida would be a positive draw for tourism and probably wouldn't be bad for attracting business either. In such a state we would have a uniformity of interests, which we do not now have. For those who would decry secession as no way to solve our problems, let me remind these people that this is not the first time we've had to secede to get away from meddling "northerners."

Sincerely yours,

Coast assistance needed By Ahead highway program

Jan. 22, 1987

The Editor

Sea Coast Echo

P.O. Box 230

Bay St. Louis, MS 39520

Dear Editor:

It is impossible to understand why a majority of the legislators from the three Gulf Coast counties are opposed to the AHEAD 4-lane highway program for Mississippi. Apparently they have very short memories, or perhaps are completely unappreciative of the many acts of cooperation they have received from other parts of our state. A few of these facts come to mind - such as:

1. In 1967 a special session of the legislature, by a vote that was almost unanimous, made available over one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000) by offering the full faith and credit of the State of

Mississippi to aid in the construction of the Standard Oil Refinery near Pascagoula.

2. The 1986 legislature allegedly made available approximately $5 or 40 million dollars in what has been termed low-cost or no-cost state grant funds for dredging the Gulfport harbor and building a bridge from Pascagoula to a Gulf of Mexico island. Apparently these were worthwhile project and are mentioned only to remind our Gulf Coast neighbors how much the rest of the state has cooperated with you.

3. In 1969 when Hurricane Camille hit the Gulf Coast resulting in the loss of many lives and much property damage, I remember that my church, as well as a multitude of others, sent money, food and clothing to the Gulf Coast. If you are again hit with such a disaster, I am sure we will again respond to the best of our ability.

Although the "seawall tax" has never been completely understood, apparently the rest of the state will continue to go along.

Your tourism business has never reached its potential. If, for no other reason, your legislators should support the AHEAD 4-lane program to enhance tourism.

For the life of me, it is impossible to understand why the Gulf Coast area turns its back on the rest of the state when we have given you almost unlimited support.

As a whole, the economy of North Mississippi is in a terrible condition. A good system of four-lane highways would be the quickest cure imaginable.

Won't the Coast area please help? Sincerely,
George M. Harris
Winona

P.S. - Although I am one of the directors, the above opinions are personal and may not necessarily be the opinions of the AHEAD group.

Stennis Field an unappreciated County asset

Jan. 26, 1986

Editor

Sea Coast Echo

Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

Hancock County is very fortunate to have the large, modern, high-quality facility of Stennis Field. It is a great credit to our politicians that it was built. The burden is now on the people of the county to use it properly and profitably, and to make sure the Fixed Base Operator (FBO) of the field serves the interests of the community as well as its own profit motive.

Short-term profit goals will not keep Stennis Field alive. It must develop a program of long-range development. There is little each of us as individuals can do from day-to-day to make sure the government does its job in this respect.

But there is one important area in which many of the county residents could participate in the maintenance and improvement of Stennis Field. That is through private aviation. The Mississippi Coast is an ideal place to learn to fly and to own or rent an airplane for business or recreational use. Flight instruction could even fit into tourism, as it does in parts of Florida.

Sadly, Stennis field is discouraging private aviation through lack of trained support personnel, increased fees, and an irresponsible attitude towards providing services to private aviation.

I believe that a few flight instructors, a classroom for ground training, and well-maintained training aircraft would renew private citizens' interest and investment in the field. The necessary facilities already exist in place. The personnel and aircraft require the investment of time or money from individuals.

The result of quality flight training at economical prices would be more tourism, more private pilots and more private aircraft, more use at the field, and more revenue. It's a shame to see such a wonderful asset going to waste for want of a little imagination.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—A 1975 civil rights lawsuit that has been poised over the head of Mississippi's higher education system for the last 12 years is at last coming to trial in federal court at Oxford on April 7.

Styled Ayres V. Allain (originally it was Ayres V. Waller, signifying then Gov. Bill Waller), the case was initially filed by a group of black plaintiffs with the support of the U.S. Justice Department, seeking to end vestiges of a dual system of higher education in Mississippi.

Similar suits were filed by the Justice Department in a half dozen or so other Southern states, several of which have been settled with tremendous impact in terms of costly reforms in operation of higher education in those states.

In Mississippi, Gov. Bill Allain, some lawmakers and others have voiced strong views the past couple of years about consolidating the state's existing eight universities.

Most proposals have centered on closing virtually all black Mississippi Valley State University, the smallest of the institutions.

Obviously the advocates of consolidation were either ignorant of the long-pending Ayres case or unaware of its broad consequences once the lawsuit is resolved.

Because of the issues which the lawsuit encompasses as to equalization of higher educational resources between blacks and whites, and equal access, it is virtually certain while the case is unresolved, the Mississippi Legislature will be paralyzed in closing any existing black universities or "starving" them by radical funding cuts.

Alabama's higher education system last year was found by a federal district judge to be un-constitutionally discriminatory against blacks, and massive reforms were ordered by the court. That decision is now being appealed by the state of Alabama.

Settlement of Louisiana's suit three or four years ago forced Louisiana to make a financial commitment of nearly $1 billion to bring about reforms giving greater access to blacks in higher education.

Now severely strapped for funds, Louisiana is facing a difficult task complying with the court order.

In Tennessee, reforms brought about by settlement of the Justice Department suit against that state included such major changes as putting all facilities of the University of Tennessee in Nashville under the jurisdiction of previously black-majority Tennessee State.

Attorneys representing Mississippi's institutions of higher learning had made a strong effort behind the scenes in 1980 to settle the lawsuit based on an undisclosed set of reforms proposed by the State College Board which would have cost an estimated $35 to $40 million to implement.

No agreement, however, could be reached between the state, the Justice Department and the private black plaintiffs in the case, and the case has dragged on. It's believed that the attorneys for the State College Board engineered the move to at last bring the case to trial in order to resolve the years-long hanging over the state's higher education.

Black plaintiffs contend that the State College Board's move complied with a 1979 Supreme Court ruling with the Justice Department in 1974 to "give blacks full access to the higher educational system."

Mississippi House of Representatives

Housekeeping - A weekly summary

JACKSON, Miss.— The first big deadline of the 1987 legislative session has passed and members of the Mississippi House of Representatives concentrated this week on hundreds of bills and resolutions introduced over the past month.

Most of the attention has been on committee work so far, which is customary during the early stages of a session since it gives legislators an opportunity to study the issues, hold public hearings, and determine which legislation they believe should be sent to the full House for consideration.

Floor action in the House in the past week included passage of bills to help deal with bad check problems in the state, and to provide for the nonpartisan election of judges. In addition, a number of other measures won House approval and were sent to the Senate.

More than 8,000 bills and resolutions have been introduced in the House since the session began, covering a wide range of topics including education, highways, constitutional revision, and economic development.

The deadline expired last week for introduction of general bills and constitutional amendments. The next deadline is Feb. 5, the last day for House and Senate committees to report bills and constitutional amendments in their own chamber.

The deadlines are part of the timetable for processing legislation, established by joint rules of the House and Senate, in an effort to see that bills are handled in a timely and orderly manner.

Last week's cutoff did not apply to appropriations or revenue bills or local and private measures. These bills are covered by a separate timetable.

The House gave overwhelming approval to the bill that would authorize district attorneys to assist retailers and private citizens in the recovery of money from people accused of writing bad checks.

The measure, recommended by the Judiciary "A" Committee, sets up a procedure for collecting restitution, and allows a service charge for processing complaints with the charge to be paid by the bad-check writer.

The legislation is aimed at chronic bad-check writers rather than average citizens who may have a check bounce one time or another due to an innocent mistake.

An identical bill was passed by the House last year but failed to clear the Senate. It was approved this year by the House with no debate and no dissenting votes.

Another House-passed bill would set up a non-partisan system of electing judges in Mississippi, removing party politics from the election of candidates for such judicial posts as the State Supreme Court, Circuit Court, Chancery Court, County Court and Family Court.

The House voted to extend a present law giving a greater degree of flexibility to trial judges in handling certain types of first-offender criminal cases.

The law, originally passed in 1963, expires July 1, 1987, unless the Legislature votes to keep it on the books.

It applies to cases in which the accused pleads guilty and the crime does not involve violent acts against another person. The judge has the discretion under the law to order payment of restitution to victims of the crime, to levy fines, and to order the accused to perform up to six months of public service work.

In other action, the House voted to require the operators of four gas wells to submit emergency management plans to state regulatory officials before starting to drill. The legislation was prompted by a gas well blowout in Rankin County about a year and a half ago.

And, bills were approved by the House to make sure that operators of logging and auto storage firms are repaid by insurance companies when hauling in wrecked vehicles; require small children (12 and under) to wear flotation devices on moving motorboats and sailboats of less than 28 feet; and designate the Reception-Classification Center at the new Rankin County Correctional Facility in honor of the late Representative Robert E. Anderson of Weason.

Anderson, who died last year, was a former chairman of the House Penitentiary Committee.

Dixie National
scheduled three-weeks

The Dixie National Livestock Show and Rodeo is scheduled in Mississippi, Feb. 2-22.

Livestock shows will take place throughout the month, and the rodeo will be featured Feb. 12-18 at the State Fairgrounds in Jackson.

In 1986, participants from 33 states and two Canadian provinces attended the show. Over 40,000 people also attended the rodeo.

The Mississippi Junior Roundup, the state's largest youth show composed of 4-H and FFA youngsters, has continued to grow. Entries to this show include beef, swine, sheep and dairy.

Last year there were 716 beef entries, 332 swine entries, 273 sheep entries and 185 dairy entries in the junior show.

The 1987 Dixie National Parade will be Saturday, Feb. 14 at 10 a.m. on Capitol Street in Jackson.

Those wishing to participate should contact Tommy Harrell or Connie Frith with the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce, 601/349-3072.

The parade is sponsored by the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce.

Eyes on Mississippi

They will contend in the suit, for example, that the board committed to have a 45 black faculty members at Ole Miss, 65 at Mississippi State and 49 at University of Southern Mississippi by 1990-91. Instead, the blacks will charge, there are only approximately 2 black professors at Ole Miss, 17 at Mississippi State and 16 at USM.

Only about one-half of the 630 doctoral degrees which the board had promised blacks have been awarded by the traditionally white institutions, black plaintiffs will contend.

On the other hand, the College Board attorneys are expected to contend that black plaintiffs have shifted their thrust in the lawsuit from one of removing the former dual system of higher education to one of funneling financial resources to the traditionally black institutions. That, the state's attorneys contend, is tantamount to reviving the old "separate but equal" doctrine.

Some interesting sidelights may arise before the Ayres case ever goes to trial.

Northern District Judge Neal Biggers, Jr. has been assigned the case and is slated to try it. But there is a possibility that longtime District Judge William C. Keady, who had the case until he took senior status two years ago, may come back to handle the trial.

One possible complication is that Judge Biggers was appointed to the federal bench on the recommendation of U.S. Sen. Thad Cochran. When Cochran was a practicing attorney in Jackson prior to being elected to Congress in 1972, he was a member of the law firm of W.F. Goodman, Jr., who is the lead attorney representing the College Board.

Power company offers energy assistance programs

During the cold winter months, the last thing Mississippi Power Company wants to do is cut off a customer's electricity for nonpayment.

"If a customer is having trouble paying his electricity bill, we'd like to know so we can help," said Harry Bell, vice president of customer services for the Gulfport-based utility.

Bell said customer service representatives and local managers will work out payment plans or point customers toward governmental energy assistance programs to prevent electric service from being disconnected.

Mississippi Power Company has compiled a manual for customers that lists every social service agency within the utility's service area that provides energy assistance funds.

"Customers with good payment records may be out of work, experiencing unexpected medical expenses or other hardships," Bell said. "Problems like these can make it difficult to pay electric bills."

Aside from working out payment plans and helping customers obtain financial assistance, Mississippi Power Company also has a number of programs designed to make it easier for customers to pay electric bills.

The company has the 3-D or Delayed Due Date program, which delays customers' electric bill due dates to coincide with the time they receive governmental assistance checks, such as Social Security.

"Almost 2,600 customers have taken advantage of this program to help avoid late payment charges and better plan their monthly budgets," Bell said.

The company offers a leveled billing program which helps minimize the impact of seasonally-high electric bills. This helps the 5,000 customers on the program with their budgets by more evenly dividing their bills into 12 monthly payments.

Mississippi Power Company's Third Party Notification program involves the utility contacting a designated person such as a relative or neighbor when a customer's electric bill is overdue.

Military Mention

AIRMAN MALLEY

Airman David D. Malley, son of Phillip W. and Janie L. Malley of Rural Route 2, Pass Christian, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force missile systems analyst course of Chanute Air Force Base, Ill.

During the course, students were taught to use consoles and optical equipment for the calibration of missile systems. They also earned credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

He is a 1985 graduate of Hancock North Central High School.

SEAMAN QUINTINI

Navy Seaman Recruit Kenneth J. Quintini, son of Perre D. and Margalo L. Quintini, both of Bay St. Louis, has completed recruit training at Recruit Training Command, San Diego.

During Quintini's eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic fields.

Quintini's studies included seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

PFC BRYAN

Marine Pfc. Milton T. Bryan, son of Harry M. and Lil T. Bryan of 107 Viste Drive, Pass Christian, recently reported for duty with First Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

LT. EVERILL

Marine 2nd Lt. Kenneth A. Everill, son of retired Marine Corps Col. and Mrs. Peter D. Everill of Route 2, Picayune, has been designated a Naval Flight Officer (NFO).

Everill received his "wings of gold" upon completion of the 12-week Tactical Navigation Phase at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla.

During his final phase of the NFO training program, he received extensive instruction on both high speed instrument navigation and low-level, high speed visual navigation. His instruction included academic studies, use of flight training simulators and participation in inflight training.

Electric bill is overdue. "Sometimes a customer either forgets to pay or misplaces his or her electric bill. This program lets someone know before the power is cut off," Bell said.

And, for the fourth year, Mississippi Power Company has donated $25,000 to the American Red Cross to provide energy assistance for the utility's elderly customers who are incapable of caring for themselves and are on fixed incomes. Since 1982, 930 families have been aided by this program.

For those Mississippi Power Company customers who depend on an electric life-support machine, the utility has a Lines Into Vital Equipment, or LIVE, program identifying these customers as needing special attention.

Mississippi Power Company has coded these customers' accounts and marked their meters to alert company personnel to prevent disconnections.

About 100 Mississippi Power Company customers who depend on electricity to run their respirators, kidney dialysis machines, iron lungs or other life support machines in their homes are on the LIVE program.

"All of these programs are designed to make it easier for our customers to do business with us," Bell said. "We care about our customers and want to help them. That's why we offer these programs and why we want to work with them if they're having trouble paying their electric bills."

SAFER ROADS. A BRIGHTER FUTURE. AND A NICKEL WILL DO IT.

Trapped behind slower traffic on a dangerous Mississippi two-lane road. Or trapped on the bottom of the economic ladder.

It's all the same. Because two-lane roads are stifling Mississippi drivers. And stifling Mississippi progress.

But we can make a move toward a better tomorrow.

We can support a commitment to construct a four-lane network in Mississippi over the next decade. A network that will put safer roads within 30 minutes of your home or destination. No matter where in Mississippi it is.

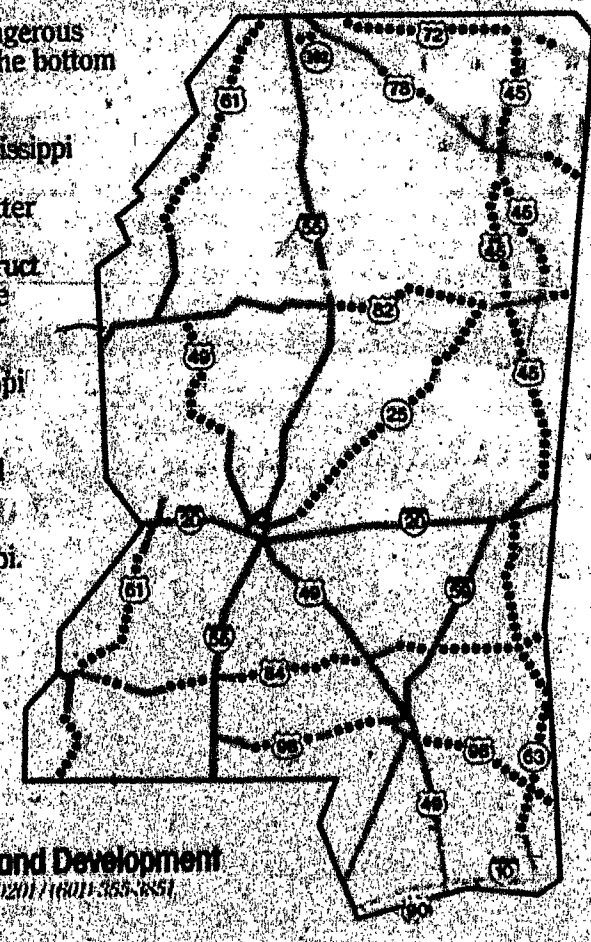

And we can pay for much of this commitment with just an additional nickel per gallon of gasoline.

Find out more about the problem and its solution. Support AHEAD in Mississippi. We have to work now to enter the economic passing lane.

Because Mississippi's future won't wait.

"Season high and keep the fire low" - that's the simple secret of many a delicious meat dish in Creole, Cajun and Southern cuisine, the long, slow cooking, well seasoned, of the less tender meats and poultry and such.

It doesn't take much culinary skill to succeed with a tender cut of meat, in my opinion; the challenge is to turn the tougher cuts into triumphs - and the old Creole cooks were adept at this.

They seasoned a round or chuck roast well, browned it, then let it cook itself to tenderness in its bath of broth or sturdy red wine and such, in a heavier than heavy cast iron pot or Dutch oven, well surrounded by vegetables cooking along with the meat.

Whether you call it by the French "daube" or "pot au feu" or by the simpler but equally tasty "Pot roast," it's a delight. And ever so "stretchable" - by adding more potatoes, carrots and onions, you can always stretch the meat to feed and satisfy a few more hungry diners.

I like the first blade cut of the chuck best for this, as it seems to give extra flavor, prepared this way; besides, if I'm lucky, I manage to get a rib-eye steak out of it as choice morsels for steak-in-nine-sauce, before I cook up the remainder. And, I often keep apart the tougher sections, along with bone and its marrow, for boiled beef or soup!

(I'm not much of a butcher, but I learned this saving technique years ago from the family cook.)

And, just about the best daube or pot roast I've ever tasted is that of Delores Bolden, my long-time friend and helper through the years - I can never make mine as good as hers, even though through the years I've watched and watched and tasted and tasted as she cooked it! So, here's:

DELORES' DAUBE

4 to 5 lbs chuck roast (or bottom round)
2 or 3 garlic cloves, slivered
4 Tbsp. olive oil
2 onions, chopped
Bay leaf
2 cups or more burgundy wine
Water as needed
Dashes of Tabasco, fresh-ground pepper, cayenne salt as you wish.
Potatoes, carrots, onions, optional.

Make slits in the roast and poke in the garlic slivers. Barely, barely fill the bottom of a Dutch Oven or other heavy pot with oil, and sear the roast on all sides, almost burning it over a very high fire. (That's part of the secret of the lush, dark sauce or gravy.)

Mississippi Forestry Commission

By Mark Jamieson
County Forester

Mississippi's Arbor Day, always the second Friday in February (Feb. 13) will again be the kick-off for a week-long statewide "Celebration of Trees."

But the 1987 tree planting ceremonies to be held at schools and other public gatherings should be more special than ever this year, according to sponsors.

Current plans call for the annual Tree Planting Week activities to also salute the 200th anniversary of our U.S. Constitution.

State Forester Sid Moss said Forestry Commission County Foresters, along with Federal Foresters with the National Forests in Mississippi will be working with the Mississippi Association of Conservation Districts and other members of local community Tree Planting Week Committees to get "Constitution Trees" planted on school grounds, courthouse lawns, public parks, and other such locations.

"If you stop and think about it," said Moss, "there aren't many, if any, living things that last for 200 years other than trees. They, and maybe a few old turtles, are the only living witnesses to what this Nation was all about back there in 1787 when the constitution was signed. Planting of these special trees is an ideal way to honor our Nation's most important historical legacy."

Moss, heads up the State Tree Planting and Forest Resource Development Committee from which the Statewide Tree Planting Week event was spawned in 1975 after being first introduced by Tree Farmer L.L. Mullins and others in Oktibbeha County years before. He noted that all 82 counties in the Magnolia State held commemorative plantings last year. Several million special trees are annually planted during the week-long event.

"We'd like to see every citizen get out and participate in some way in 1987 and help us honor these two great strengths of our Nation—our trees and our Constitution," said Moss.

"When it's all past we ought to have a 'Constitution Tree' in every yard and every major public gathering place in this tree-blessed State!" the State Forester declared.

In every county those who want to participate should contact their local County Forester, County Agent, SCS Office, or wood industry forester—or watch and listen to the local media, for information on how they can obtain one or a few trees to plant and where and when public ceremonies will be held.

Those dates for Tree Planting Week again are: Feb. 13-19.

ATTENDS SEMINAR—Greg Smith, manager of Bucares State Park, talks with Charlotte (Charlie) Ray of Hattiesburg, following Ray's opening presentation at a training academy for state park managers at Roosevelt State Park. The academy is designed to augment the skills of park managers in areas of fire, law enforcement, and other management areas.

Tree cutters urged to "keep heads up"

Do you have plans to clear some land for farming? Or perhaps you're cutting timber for firewood? Or maybe, you're just getting rid of some old dead trees? Well, regardless of the chore at hand, cutting down trees requires serious attention.

Peter Platz, director of engineering services for Coast Electric Power Association, recently stated, "Coast Electric maintains over 3,800 miles of line, much of which lies in deeply wooded areas. And, because of this, it seems every year at this time, our service crews are called out to repair line damage caused by falling trees," he commented.

Tree cutters can avoid needless dangers by observing some rather simple rules. According to Platz, "Tree cutters need to make a careful surveillance of the area, before they begin any cutting. Wood can be a conductor of electricity, and most often, the serious accidents involved in cutting timber occur because no attention was paid to the presence of electric power lines," he cautioned.

Platz also suggested that individuals planning to cut timber should "keep their heads up" and look for overhead power lines and any that may be to the sides of the area surrounding the cutting site. "Everyone needs to take a few minutes to look up and make sure that when the tree or limbs fall, no contact will be made with any power line," he added.

He further cautioned, that above all should the tree fall or become entangled with a power line, people must not attempt to remove it. "If the timber does come in contact with electric power lines, avoid all contact with the tree, advises Platz.

"Have someone stay at the site to caution others and report the condition to Coast Electric immediately. Our trouble call operators are on duty 24 hours a day, seven days a week," he continued.

Additionally, Platz stated the cooperative has a full-time right-of-way clearing crew that can help with tree removal.

pending to be passed to the next Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury recommends that the July, 1987 Grand Jury be furnished copies of this report as their first order of business and that the Grand Jury will make a diligent inquiry to see if the recommendations made in the previous Grand Jury report have been followed. We recommend that the July, 1987 Grand Jury be allowed to take the tour prior to the reports of the officials. All county supervisors and administrations of the Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland are to be furnished copies of this report, as well as State Senators Martin Smith and Gene Taylor, State Representative Walter James Phillips, and the school boards of Bay St. Louis Separate Municipal School District and Hancock County and the State Board of Education.

We recommend that the duly elected Supervisors of Hancock County read and study the findings and recommendations of this Grand Jury and make them a part of their minutes.

The Grand Jury heard reports from the following officials: Eddie Murtagh, Hancock County Tax Assessor and Collector; Terrell Randolph, Superintendent of Hancock County Schools; Mike Neçaise, Hancock County Chancery Clerk; Mark Jamieson, Mississippi Forestry Commission; Dolph Kellar, President of the Board of Supervisors; Bill Johnson, Maintenance Supervisor; and Ronnie Peterson, Sheriff of Hancock County. We are satisfied that these offices are operating efficiently and within the scope of their duties.

In addition, the Grand Jury toured the existing Hancock County Sheriff's Office and jail; the new jail, the old and new hospitals and the Welfare Department. The Grand Jury thanks Ronnie Peterson, Sheriff, and Phil Wolfe, Administrator of the Hancock County Hospital for their time in conducting the tours of the new jail and hospital facilities. We thank the Hancock County Retired Senior Citizens Volunteer Program for furnishing the Grand Jury with transportation and a driver.

The Grand Jury makes the following recommendations:

- (1) the Grand Jury strongly urges the Board of Supervisors take immediate action to provide adequate facilities for the Welfare Department as stated in the January, 1986 Grand Jury Report and the July, 1986 Grand Jury Report;
- (2) that funds seized by various law enforcement agencies from illegal activities be used to purchase quality electronic surveillance equipment for use by the law enforcement agencies;
- (3) that Bill Johnson, Unit System

Maintenance supervisor, report on the progress and financial status for the first half of fiscal year 1987 at the next meeting of the Grand Jury;

- (4) that Superintendent of Hancock County Schools, Terrell Randolph, be permitted to pursue plans for construction of the new school facility on the land donated at Highway 603 off Nicola Road;
- (5) that efforts be made to sell the old Hancock County Hospital building with the proceeds from the sale to be used for the new Hancock Medical Center; and
- (6) that the Hancock County Board of Supervisors send a letter of commendation to the various Louisiana law enforcement agencies for their assistance to the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

The Grand Jury appreciates the good work by the local law enforcement agencies in uncovering racketeering activities in Hancock County and encourages them to continue in their endeavors.

that plan, would be used for fourth and fifth graders and the elementary schools would be kindergarten-3 schools as in the plan the board accepted.

Oge' said the redistribution of the grades among five schools would not have been as efficient under the proposal the board did not choose.

The proposal selected would be less expensive in construction and reorganization, the superintendent said.

"It is the most educationally sound proposal, the most efficient relative to initial costs of construction and it is most effective on a long-term basis," Oge' said.

Under the proposal, no new administrators would have to be hired. In addition, having grades 7-12 in the same complex offers several advantages.

First, most secondary school teachers are certified for 7-12 and the plan would coordinate well with certification and eliminate duplications of effort and expense that occur when the same program, such as a foreign language class, must be provided in two locations.

The plan would also provide better curriculum coordination, with a single department for each subject area, the superintendent said.

Some teachers would teach students on several grade levels and would therefore know the background most students have in their particular subject areas.

In addition, the district's athletic program could be coordinated better with the junior high and high school

This Grand Jury worked in unison and harmony in carrying out all of its duties and responsibilities. We wish to express our gratitude to the Court; the District Attorney, Cato A. Caranna, II; Jay Golden, Assistant District Attorney; and John Genin, County Prosecuting Attorney, for their guidance and assistance.

Finally, we would like to thank the Honorable Frank W. Alexander for the charge he gave us when we were empaneled. Our tenure has been very educational and has enlightened us as to the problems of Hancock County.

We have completed our duties and respectfully ask to be recessed, subject to recall under the Ingram Rule, until the next Grand Jury is empaneled.

in a single complex, allowing competitive athletics to be de-emphasized at the middle school.

Students in grades 4-6 could be offered a comprehensive physical fitness program instead.

The reorganization of the grades at each facility would also reduce the number of counselors needed at the high school-junior high complex, allowing one part-time counselor to be available to students at the middle school.

Extra-curricular activities such as band would become less expensive and easier to coordinate under the proposal and a better coordinated fine arts program could be developed, the superintendent said.

In addition, the plan facilitates the development of alternative education plans for special and gifted students.

Oge' said cost of administrative services and transportation would also be cut because half the district's students would be attending classes at the high school-junior high complex.

"As I speak with the public, either in public hearings or other meetings, I'm not going to be slick, clever or seductive. I'm going to try to tell the public what I see as the minimum needs for our school system to best educate their children, grand-children and so on," the superintendent said.

The 7 p.m. meeting will be in the superintendent's boardroom in the Bay Senior High building.

ETV Brief

BLACK HISTORY

February is Black History Month, and Mississippi ETV is beginning its celebration early with two special programs scheduled for Friday, Jan. 30.

"The Gospel at Colonus," a retelling of the ancient Greek legend of Oedipus in the hand-clapping, gospel-singing style of a black Pentecostal church meeting, will be presented again on "Great Performances" at 9 p.m. It debuted on public television in November 1985.

ment after being opened and publicly read by Harry Kaufman, a representative of the district's engineering firm, Reynolds, Smith and Hills.

An additional bid received was rejected because it did not meet specifications.

The low bidder was not immediately apparent because the advertisement included three options, and not all of the bidders tried for contracts on the same option, District Administrator Ethel Schott said.

She said the bids on Segment III of a four-part project will be evaluated by the project engineers in order for the lowest and best bid may be selected and approved by the board.

The estimated total cost of the segment is $2,800,000, according to Brian Engle of Mississippi Bureau of Pollution Control.

The bureau, along with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, is overseeing and handling part of the funding for the district's current four-part project.

That project will eventually link the Bay St. Louis and Waveland sewerage collection systems, with wastewater treatment provided at an improved version of the existing Waveland wastewater treatment plant.

Treated wastewater will be discharged into Edwards Bayou. Currently, both Edwards and Watts Bayou are used as discharge points.

The plan also calls for extension of sewerage into four county subdivisions selected for their population density.

The only existing sewerage in the unincorporated parts of the county are privately owned systems designed to serve a single subdivision.

The work to be done for the phase of the project bid Monday includes improvements at the treatment that will make it possible for the plant to provide a higher degree of treatment in addition to handling the additional sewerage from Bay St. Louis, which is presently treated in a sewerage lagoon, Schott said.

Two pipelines will also be constructed in Segment III. They include a pipeline along St. Joseph Street and Gulfside Drive leading to the plant as well as a new outfall line into Edwards Bayou, the administrator said.

The options for bidding included the pipelines only, plant improvements only and pipelines and plant improvements as a package.

In other business, the board agreed to purchase some of the furniture needed for an expanded office and technical facility at the treatment plant and asked for additional price quotes to be obtained for conference room furniture.

Next Wednesday's meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. at Waveland City Hall.

Mississippi livestock auction agrees to cease and desist order

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—Poplarville Stockyards, Inc. at Poplarville, Miss., has agreed to a cease and desist order to settle federal charges of permitting a conflict of interest in its auction sales and having shortages in its custodial account.

The market draws trade from southern Alabama, eastern Louisiana and southern Mississippi, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture official.

A USDA official said the firm specifically agreed to not permit its auctioneers, weighmasters and other employees engaged in the conduct of auction sales to buy livestock out of consignments, and to not sell consigned livestock to any owner, officer agent or employee without disclosing their name and relationship to the market.

B.H. (Bill) Jones, head of USDA's Packers and Stockyards Administration, said the firm also agreed not to employ Joe Mack Smith, its manager, in any capacity for 23 days.

Smith agreed earlier to a $3,000 civil penalty, a 20-day suspension, and a cease and desist order to settle his portion of the case. Tommy Bond, the auctioneer, earlier agreed to a $2,000 civil penalty and an order barring him from operating as a livestock dealer for 14 days.

In agreeing to the cease and desist order, Poplarville Stockyards neither admitted nor denied the federal administrative charges filed by USDA under authority of the Packers and Stockyards (P&S) Act.

The P&S Act is an antitrust, fair trade practice and payment protection law. It is designed to maintain integrity in the marketing of livestock, poultry and meat, and economic law and order in the marketplace.

Stone hands SCC 9th Grade first loss, 50-43

After 10 consecutive wins, the SCC 9th Grade Basketball team fell to a tall, talented Stone County squad 50-43 in a game played Monday afternoon in the new SSC gym.

Stone took control of the game in the middle of the third quarter, when over Stone County. The game was close the entire contest, but Scott Peterson's seven fourth quarter pressure free throws sealed the victory for SSC.

Kendall Daniels led SSC with 14 points, followed by Billy Saunders with 10 points, and Peterson with seven points.

Ed Hinton of Stone led all scorers with 23 points.

Both SSC teams return to action Monday afternoon as they travel to Hancock North Central to play the Hawks. Tipoff is set for 5:00 p.m.

they took the lead for the first time in the game.

The intimidating presence of Stone's big men Mike Wilson and James Martin allowed the Rocks usually one shot at the basket.

Martin led all scorers with 15 points, followed by Wilson with 12. For St. Stanislaus, Shannon Garret had 15 points, followed by Greg Schruiff and Cedric Smith with eight points each.

SSC jumped out to a 16-8 lead over Stone in the first quarter, but was outscored 11-8 in the second period to take a 24-19 halftime edge.

Stone made adjustments in their zone defense which did not permit SSC to get the ball inside to Sean Sewell and Chris Perone. Stone's trapping press also hurt the Rocks, as it did not allow SSC to set up their offense.

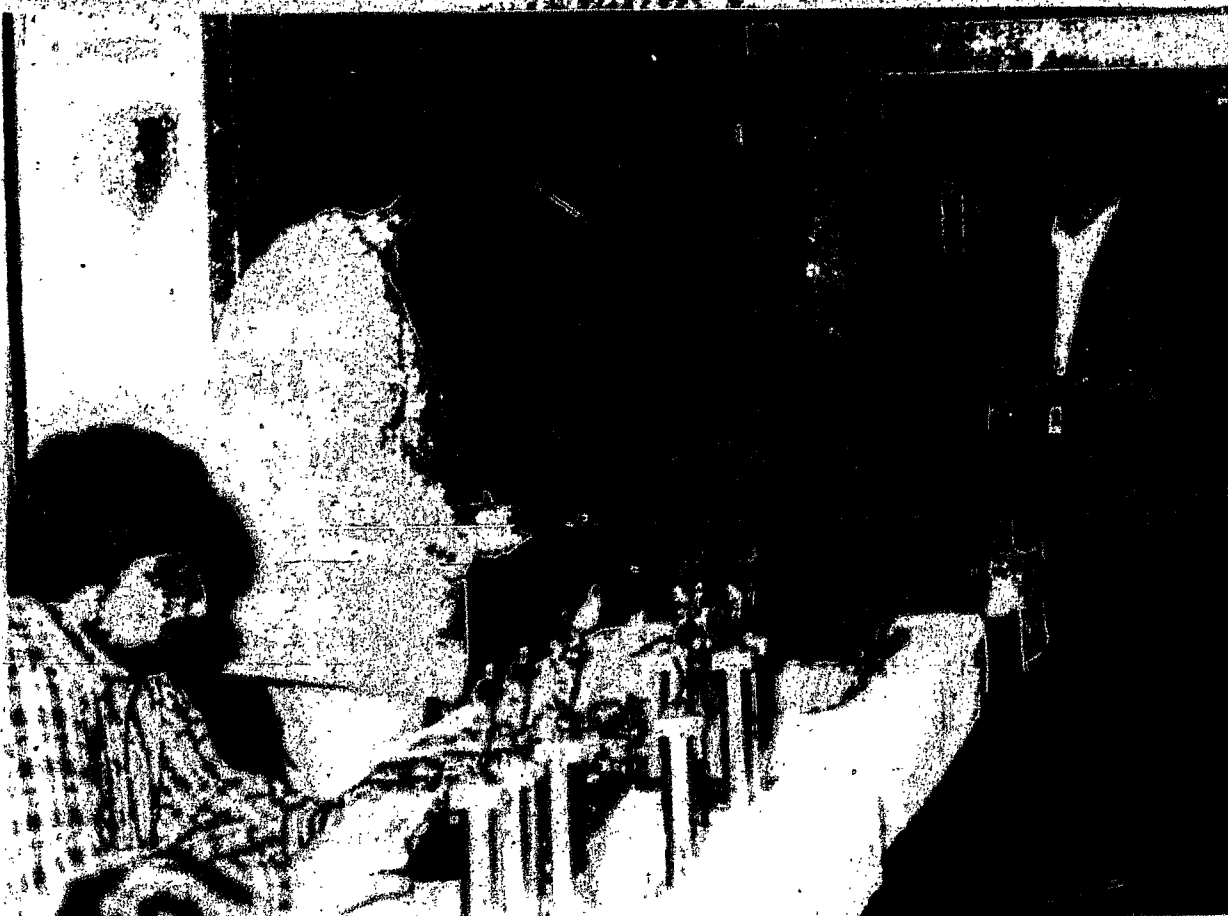

It seemed that every time SSC did get the ball inside and penetrated the Rocks' defense, Stone would get the rebound and fast-break down the court on the Rocks. Eight unanswered third-quarter points by Stone were on fast-breaks.

In the second half, Stone outscored the Rocks 31-21 for their margin of victory.

The SSC 7th-8th grade team was impressive in their 43-35 decision

Bassin with the Pros

by Trey Foerster

Are genetics improving bass fishing?

Much research is going into the development of bigger bass. From the tournament level on down to the average bass sportsman, there is a crying need for not only larger bass but a greater number of the fish. It is good, or are we inviting Mother Nature's wrath?

According to Ken Cook, Outboards Pro Team member, there are a lot of benefits that can be derived from these types of experiments. But his enthusiasm is tempered with the cautious instincts of a biologist.

"I think it needs to be approached rather carefully and a considerable amount of research needs to be done whereby you won't get the wrong traits passed along to the hybrid bass," Cook emphasizes.

"If you import a different subspecies and introduce and hybridize with other species of bass, the Florida subspecies with the Northern, what you are trying to get is bigger and faster growing bass. But there are some other characteristics about the Florida bass that may not be as favorable. They don't survive cold winters as well, for instance. And so you could introduce a characteristic in the Northern living bass populations that would be detrimental to that subspecies of bass."

Randy Dearman, member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff, also sees genetics as a boon to the bass sport. "There's no doubt in my mind that what biologists are doing in the field is a definite plus as far as raising larger bass. I think it's been proven here in Texas with what they call the Super Bass—they take a large Florida female and a Texas male and cross-breed them and produce some extremely large fish. Our Texas males grow larger than those in Florida, and the Florida females are bigger than their Texan counterparts, and they are using the two larger fish to produce what they call the Super Bass."

Both pros are in favor of bigger bass, especially on the pro circuit. However, they sincerely feel that genetically improved bass will hold a great future for the average angler.

"If you don't have the potential to grow these trophy bass, the average angler is never going to have an opportunity to catch them," Dearman stresses. But with genetic improvements come additional challenges, as Cook notes. "One of the characteristics that can be inherited from the Florida subspecies is that they tend to be a little more difficult to catch. It does tend to protect the bass population from overharvest, but on the other hand it does make the bass more difficult to catch for the average fisherman."

Have any questions you'd like a bass pro to answer? Jot them down and mail them to "Bassin' with the Pros" at this newspaper. Answers to your questions will appear in a future column.

1987 USM baseball schedule

HATTIESBURG—Appearance in the University of South Alabama Diamond Classic and the University of North Carolina-Charlotte Invitational Tournaments along with an annual Jackson-based game with Mississippi State highlight the 60-game 1987 University of Southern Mississippi baseball schedule released by head coach Bill Denson and athletic director Bill McLellan.

Coming off a 1986 season that saw the Golden Eagles post their most victories ever (31) along with their highest-ever Metro Conference Tournament finish, USM will open the season Feb. 10 at West Florida and wrap up scheduled play with the conference tournament May 13-17 at South Carolina (Columbia, S.C.).

In between, the Eagles will play in the South Alabama Diamond Classic March 30-31. The field there will include the host Jaguars, the Golden Eagles, Tulane and Southern California. Also, on May 9-10, USM will prep for the Metro Tournament with an appearance in the University of North Carolina-Charlotte Tournament where the field will include (in addition to the host team and USM) Memphis State, North Carolina State, Davidson and W. Kentucky.

Denson calls the "60 slate" "our season's challenge." In addition to the tournaments and the full slate of conference games, the Eagles will host SEC powerhouse Mississippi State for two games and play the Bulldogs a final time, this one an annual game that will be played in Jackson's Smith-Willis Stadium. It is set for April 2 this year.

In addition to Mississippi State, the Eagles also will host such non-conference powers as South Alabama, Tulane, UNO and Alabama; and the Metro Conference schedule will be made up of two three-game series with Florida State and Memphis State and four designated games each with Tulane and Northeast Louisiana.

The Golden Eagles also will play a second Smith-Willis game (April 2) against perennially strong Jackson State.

Concerning the schedule, Denson says, "We're not playing as many doubleheaders as in some past years because of the 60-game limit imposed by the NCAA. However, this will be one of our strongest schedules ever and the addition of the USA Diamond Classic as a big plus for us. It'll be a help in recruiting, as will our Jackson game with Mississippi State."

"The schedule includes many of the teams we play every year, and I think we'll be competitive with this schedule. The addition of Fred Cooley (Jones Junior College) will give us an offensive lift and should provide us a strong finisher for the pitching staff."

"We obviously have some questions concerning our pitching, and the loss of pitcher Kent Willis (9-7, 140 strikeouts) and slugging outfielder Greg Conner (team high .328 batting average and school record 22 home runs) to the major leagues will hurt, but we expect big things from John Gessner, (2-0) and Chris Wagner (4-5) on our pitching staff."

"In addition, we had strong hitting performances a year ago from Darin Nixon (10 home runs), Doug Cronk with eight home runs, and both Scooter Love and Kenny Graves. With a year's experience all should be improved, and our offensive output should be more consistent."

Denson says his team, position by position, will be stronger than last year's club that finished with a 31-30 record and made a strong run at the conference championship in the tournament at Florida State.

"We'll play only one freshman most of the time," says Denson. "That's unusual for us, but also shows that we're making progress in getting and keeping the kind of people we need for the kind of program we're trying to establish here at USM."

The complete schedule follows:

FEBRUARY
10- at West Florida; 12- Spring Hill, home; 14- Southern University, home; 16- Belhaven, home; 19- at Southeastern La.; 21-22- Arkansas Little Rock, home; 24- South Alabama, home; 25- at Livingston; 28- at Florida State.

Narcotics News

Director
Bureau of Narcotics

Q: "Crack" seems to be an issue on a lot of the T.V. specials now. Is it really that big of a problem in Mississippi? (S.F. Gulfport, MS)

A: Yes! "Crack" accounted for 19 percent of the cocaine cases made by the Bureau this year.

Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics reflect 534 cocaine cases made in 1986 and of those 99 involved "crack."

Just in the last six weeks of the year, statistics show a 35 percent increase.

The statistics alone reflect the increased popularity "crack" made in our state within one year.

It is the fastest growing drug problem in America and it's only a matter of time before it becomes the number one problem in Mississippi.

Q: What are the long-term effects of smoking marijuana? (S.A. Biloxi, MS)

A: There are numerous medical and scientific studies documenting the damage that marijuana has on the body. Research continues on the effects of marijuana. Some of the harmful effects that have been documented are:

Heart. Marijuana use increases the heart rate as much as 50 percent and cause chest pains and very low blood pressure in people with heart problems.

Lungs. Repeated inhalation of smoke into the lungs causes inflammation and affects pulmonary functions. One study on long-term use found that smoking five marijuana joints a week was more harmful than almost six packs of cigarettes a week.

Immune System. Some studies suggest that heavy marijuana smoking affects the white cell formation, hindering the body's ability to fight infection.

As the saying goes, "not one study gives marijuana a clean bill of health."

If you would like to ask a question, address it to: Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics, P.O. Box 6462, Jackson, MS 39212.

Sponsors needed for Italian students' Waveland visit

BY DENA BISNETTE

If sponsors can be found to help provide expenses, a second group of Italian students may be able to visit Waveland and the New Orleans, La., area.

The first group, about 30 soccer players from Fiesole, Italy, visited July 1986, according to the team's sponsor, Mario Bonelli of Fiesole. Bonelli, who visited the U.S. again in January while on a business trip, is now trying to arrange for a visit by a group of students from Fiesole school of Music.

The soccer players, most of whom ranged in age from 16 to 25 years old, were very impressed with their visit, Bonelli explained.

"They speak very highly of southern hospitality. They liked New Orleans, but were more impressed with the south," he said.

"They could not have come without our help but several of them have said they would like to come back on their own some day."

The soccer players had arranged their visit to the United States through a Jefferson Parish, La., youth exchange program, which in 1984 had provided a group of American students with a trip to Italy.

A Jefferson parish resident Paul Connick provided a donation that helped with transportation costs, Bonelli said.

In Italy, the Fiesole Lions Club and the Fiesole Tourism Commission provided the young Americans with transportation, and housing was provided by local residence and St. Francis Convent.

Bonelli became involved because the soccer team his business sponsors provided food for the American students, and he decided to work out a reciprocal agreement to allow his team to visit the U.S.

Exhibition soccer games were arranged with schools in Jefferson Parish, along with visits with public officials and New Orleans Lions Club members.

The visit to Waveland was arranged through Muriel Amedee, who with her daughter-in-law Janie Amedee is a New Orleans distributor for Bonelli's firm, Bonelli of Florence.

The firm exports leather goods designed by Bonelli to several European countries in addition to the United States and is actually located in Fiesole, although it is called Bonelli of Florence because the larger city is near Fiesole and is better known.

Muriel Amedee and her husband, Roy Amedee, hosted the soccer players last year at their Waveland residence. If Bonelli is able to bring the music students to the U.S., he plans to arrange for a visit to Waveland and the Amedee home.

He also wants to arrange for the students, who range in age from 14 to 18 and come from major cities like Rome to study in Fiesole, to give concerts in New Orleans and California.

Bonelli said the problem will be finding sponsors to help with the cost.

"Last time it was an exchange program. It is less expensive for us to host American students because it was only about $4,000 or $5,000," he said.

"We had the students housed in convents and with local families and that cost us very little."

He said he hopes to be able to bring at least a delegation of the school's older students.

Bonelli feels student exchanges are important because they promote understanding between people from different countries.

"This trip is really a passport of peace," he had said when he visited Waveland with his soccer players.

"These young people will go home with different impressions and opinions about Americans."

"This country will no longer just be a place they have heard about but never seen. They will know people here."

Hancock Elementary students honored

The Hancock North Central Elementary held its second nine weeks and first semester Student Recognition Day Jan. 22.

Students were recognized and received certificates for perfect attendance, best citizenship, honor roll, Principal's List and most outstanding in each academic subject in each class.

Following the ceremony, the PTO sponsored a Student Recognition Day Tea in honor of these students in the cafeteria.

Some of the Marine Corps Temple Clowns: Jerry Hewitt, "Tazie," Dennis Mayor, "Bubbles," Gilbert Danton, "Buttons" and George Marshall, "Baggie," were on hand for entertainment making 189 honor students figure balloons.

Carey professor publishes

GULFPORT—Dr. Jerry Young, professor of education and assistant academic coordinator at William Carey College on the Coast in Gulfport, had three articles published in 1986.

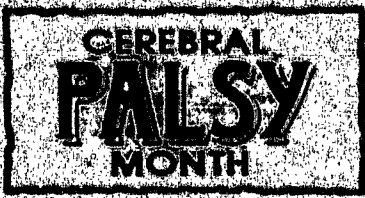

The first written with Dr. Reed R. Mottley and Ms. Linda Kay, his former colleagues at the University of Southern Mississippi. "Using Manzo's ReQuest Model with Delinquent Adolescents" was published in the March issue of the Journal of Reading.

The article discussed the problem of incarcerated youths who often do not have the chance to take part in unhurried dialogue in class. When juvenile delinquents do get the chance to participate in open conversation, their learning and self-esteem improve.

In the March issue of the Journal of Career Development, Young wrote the article "What Competencies do Employees Really Need?—A Review of Three Studies." He reviewed previous surveys of employers in Mississippi, California and nationwide. The results showed very similar skills needed by employees within the three areas.

The July/August issue of The Social Studies included the article "Socratic Teaching in Social Studies," written by Young and Ms. Kay. According to their research, Socratic questioning helps students learn to think, communicate and understand concepts better.

Young, a 1960 graduate of Crystal Springs High School, received a bachelor's degree from USM, a master's degree from the University of South Alabama, and a doctorate from the University of Alabama. This is his first semester with William Carey College.

Bay resident named LSU's Coast drive head

BATON ROUGE—William P. "Commander" Edwards of Bay St. Louis has been named chairman of the 28th annual LSU Alumni Fund Drive for the Gulf Coast area, according to national fund drive chairman William H. Wright Jr.

As area fund chairman, Edwards holds one of the key positions in LSU's academic fund-raising network and is responsible for directing fund solicitation efforts for the Gulf Coast area through Dec. 31.

"We're confident that with the support of the Gulf Coast alumni and the leadership of Edwards, the 28th Fund will be the most successful ever," said Wright, who is president of the Wright & Percy Insurance Agency of Baton Rouge.

Edwards, a retired military commander now with the New York Life Insurance Co., is a 1943 engineering graduate of LSU.

The LSU Alumni Federation is a non-profit organization of alumni, former students, and friends of the University dedicated to the support of academics through student scholarships, student jobs, faculty awards, and a variety of other educational projects.

Membership in the Alumni Federation is open to everyone—not just graduates or ex-students of LSU—through an annual contribution to the Alumni Fund.

Those who contribute $100 or more become members of one of the Alumni leadership clubs, members of which account for more than half of all alumni donations.

To join the LSU Alumni Federation, call the Alumni Office at 1-800-222-4LSU, or write to the LSU Alumni Federation, P.O. 25097, LSU, Baton Rouge, La. 70804-5097.

Poster Art Contest open to Mississippi students

The sixth annual poster art contest on the "Health Hazards of Smoking" is being conducted by the Mississippi Lung Association.

The contest is designed to emphasize the value of lung health and to give Mississippi students in grades 3 through 12 an opportunity to participate in an art education project, said Mrs. Johnnie Tolleson of Kosciusko, president of the Christmas Seal voluntary health organization.

Teachers will select preliminary winning posters and submit them to the Mississippi Lung Association for statewide judging no later than Monday, March 23.

A first place winner will be selected from each grade 3 through 12 and prizes will be awarded to these students for their achievement in the art project.

Additionally, from the first place winners, the panel of judges will select one poster to be the Mississippi Lung Association's Anti-Smoking Poster of the Year. The student whose artwork is chosen for this honor will receive a special award at the 1987 MLA Annual Meeting in Jackson.

Announcements giving complete details of the contest have been sent to all Mississippi schools.

Anyone needing further information may contact the Mississippi Lung Association, P.O. Box 9655, Jackson, Ms 39206.

Gifted students cited at Coast Episcopal

Four seventh grade students at Coast Episcopal High School have been selected as candidates in the Duke University Talent Identification Program.

They are Matthew Broadstreet, son of Capt. Susan E. Broadstreet of Ocean Springs; Karen Kohl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kohl, and Jessica Taylor, daughter of Mrs. Denise Durel Sodano, all of Pass Christian; and Jennifer Willis, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Marshall R. Willis of Biloxi. These students scored above the 97th percentile on the California Achievement Test.

The Duke University Program focuses on exceptionally bright children in 15 states of the southeast, southwest, and midwest United States.

The objectives of the program are to identify very bright children at an early age, to assist in their educational development, to follow and nurture their talent during the critical middle and high school years, to assist in their placement in colleges and universities that have programs to match the students' potential, and to develop an effective research effort to help understand the nature of gifted adolescents.

These seventh grade students are now required to take the SAT test, which is usually given only to college-bound juniors and seniors, later this month.

MSU receives $7,280 grant from state power company foundation

The Mississippi Power Foundation Inc. of Gulfport recently awarded $7,280 to the Mississippi State University School of Architecture to begin a microcomputer laboratory.

The laboratory will permit students to integrate computer-aided architectural design into their curriculum, which is necessary for national accreditation. The software will enable instant three-dimensional viewing of design projects.

The foundation is a non-profit organization formed by Mississippi Power Co. to promote excellence in Mississippi education.

"We have proven that computer-aided architectural design directly benefits our students," said project coordinator Michael Fraser. "This grant will allow the school to set up permanent facilities so students can learn through the most up-to-date methods."

Fraser said microcomputers will be "the mainstay of information management" for professions like architecture that are characterized by small, low-overhead firms without technological experience or expertise.

"Mississippi architects do not want to be left behind by the new technology and are anxious that we train our students in usable computer skills," he said.

Brown contracts how-to accounting book

University of Southern Mississippi Director of Financial Affairs Harry L. Brown is working on solving a national problem of numerous accounting managers—that of locating a book documenting how to keep books.

Brown has contracted with John Wiley and Sons, Inc. publishers to write a how-to book on designing and maintaining accounting manuals.

"The single biggest weakness in the accounting field is the lack of documentation on how to keep books, policies and other things like computer output," Brown said, adding that his technical book will be used to train employees on how to keep accurate books containing hundreds to thousands of pages.

"Getting it in writing is what's hard," he said, "since executives see that as tying them down to a procedure which they don't have time or expertise for."

Beginning in late July, Brown took Friday afternoons as vacation time and wrote the book in four months, using a personal computer. "Design and Maintenance of Accounting Manuals" hopefully will be approved, reviewed by experts, then returned to the USM official for revisions before being printed "by mid-summer, 1987."

Brown said he volunteered to write the book after the National Association of Accountants requested the manual for a book series to be offered to more than 100,000 members nationwide.

"I like to write and I thought it would be interesting since I've been in that field for years," Brown said, noting an urge to create a new documents was a major reason he joined the staff of USM in 1981 after working for an independent CPA firm for some 20 years.

Brown explained the planned 225-page book includes 12 chapters on such topics as accounting manuals, general accounting manuals, policy procedure statements, forms manuals, year-end manuals, date processing manuals, user manuals, information release systems, style, mechanics, maintenance and manual documentation summary.

"When you think that more than 100,000 books are printed in the United States each year and there are some 240 million people, it makes me feel a little different knowing I am the author of one of those books," Brown said.

"I said I'd never write another book after the one I wrote 20 years ago on auditing procedures," Brown said.

Parents of HNC's gifted organizing association chapter

Parents of students enrolled in the Honors Program at Hancock North Central met Tuesday, Jan. 13 at the home of Ms. Lois Abrams in Diamondhead.

The teaching tools for these above average students—The Mississippi Future Problem Solving Program; various contests; newspapers—were explained to the parents by Ms. Abrams, teacher at HNC.

Plans were approved to meet Feb. 9 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Caston to form a local chapter of MATAG, the Mississippi Association for Talented and Gifted.

The association's goals are to serve the state of Mississippi in the development and improvement of programs for the talented and gifted by keeping parents, teachers, institutions of higher learning, and the community aware of the need to provide appropriate experiences for these students; disseminate news on programs, projects, and research of the talented and gifted; encourage local chapter organizations throughout the state to find and develop facilities for the talented and gifted of their communities; serve as a catalyst in the educational growth and stimulation of the membership; and work for improvement in all areas of education, and for better educational opportunities for all children.

Mississippi is one of the seven states that spends over $6 million on the above-average student, yet the program is not mandated by law.

Anyone interested in this organization is welcome. For more information call Ms. Abrams at 255-1864 or Mrs. Caston, 255-9750.

APPRECIATION GIFT—Myra Peterson, Hancock North Central cafeteria manager, and staff accepts a clock presented as a token of appreciation by the HNC Elementary PTO. "Ms. Peterson and staff have been very helpful on many occasions in allowing the PTO to utilize the cafeteria. They have also assisted in a fish fry and teas for the honor students. Their assistance and cooperation is greatly appreciated," said PTO spokesperson Chris Caston.

USM scientists study ocean system

A team of research scientists at the University of Southern Mississippi's NASA-based Center for Marine Science is studying how elements and other materials are moved about in the oceans of the world.

Drs. George Kanuer and Don Redalje are in the second year of a three-year study funded by the National Science Foundation. With total funding of some $313,000, the particular study involves "large" marine particles and their role in transporting organic and inorganic materials as they fall through ocean environment.

"We are looking at the vertical transport of materials from the top to the bottom of an oceanic water column and all the transfers along the way," Redalje said.

"We are studying the complex interaction of the system—including assessing the role of waste products from living organisms, phytoplankton, minute amounts of trace elements from the atmosphere—and we are studying how carbon and nitrogen are transported," he added.

Until recently, the fine, suspended particles in the world's oceans were thought to be responsible for most of the transportation of oceanic materials. But studies conducted during the past decade have shown the relatively rare, large particles sinking through the water column are responsible for a majority of the downward mass flux in the sea.

The USM scientists take their samples from "sediment traps," which are free-floating in the oceans of the world, collecting marine sediment samples from the ocean's surface down to a depth of some 2,000 meters. The next collection voyage is planned in early 1987 to a site in the Pacific Ocean some 1,000 miles from the coast of Oregon.

The collection platforms are equipped with transmitters, which are monitored by the French ARGOS satellite system. The European tracking station is able to identify the location of the collecting stations within a 50 mile radius, 24 hours a day. The stations also are equipped with strobe lights to further assist the scientists in locating their target on the vast oceanic expanse.

Knauer came to USM in 1985 as a professor and director in the USM Center for Marine Science, located at NASA's National Space and Technology Laboratories near Picayune. Redalje also is a faculty member and a specialist in phytoplankton research at the USM center, which offered its first graduate classes in the fall of 1986.

HNC Elementary sees magic show

The Hancock North Central Elementary School PTO sponsored a Clown and Magician Show in the gymnasium for the elementary students.

This was sponsored from the proceeds of the Santa Christmas Store sponsored by the PTO in December for the elementary students.

Dr. Dianne Tucker, principal of Hancock North Central Elementary, said she felt this show was a cultural activity beneficial and entertaining for the children in fine arts.

The actors, Alto and Lulu (Arthur and Louise Allen) from Slidell, La. performed two shows. The first show was for grades K-3 from 8:30 a.m. until 9:30 a.m. and the second show was for 4th through 6th.

Each show was geared for the proper age group, performing magic and comedy.

Other monthly cultural activities are planned for the remainder of the school year.

Diamondhead Academy sets registration for spring term

Diamondhead Academy has set Monday, Feb. 9 as the beginning of open registrations for the second semester.

Although the school is located within the Diamondhead community, registration is open to anyone.

Diamondhead Academy has openings in all grades from kindergarten to sixth grade. All classes are small and the faculty and administration is dedicated to quality education.

Nursery care is also available from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

For more information or an appointment call the school, 255-1784.

Ask Ochsner

Q. My daughter-in-law takes my grandson to baby exercise classes. She says the classes help aid in the development of the child. I have never heard of such a thing. Is this true? B. T., Breaux Bridge, La.

A. Formal lessons of any kind before three years of age are not only a waste of time but can actually be counterproductive, says Dr. Andrea Starrett, head of the Child Development Center at Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans.

She says that trying to teach a skill to a child before he is ready can develop frustrations in both the baby and the parent.

Basically, what a baby can do at this early age is mainly influenced by his biological development and although a deprived environment can retard development, there is no way to force the normal maturation process ahead of schedule, she says.

The structure of an infant's brain is in no way similar to an adult's. The primary pathway which are used in learning are essentially undeveloped at birth and no amount of "teaching" before babies are two can change that.

Dramatic changes in the maturation of the human brain occur between birth and the age of two.

Toys such as infant gyms, which are suspended in the crib, may provide an opportunity to interact with the child in a warm and loving way but the toy itself does not affect maturation or push the infant ahead of schedule, she says.

More important than any toy is the parent and how he or she interacts with the child. For the first few years the child is much more influenced by a concerned, attentive and stimulating adult than by any formal teaching or mechanical toy. A whole roomful of toys doesn't substitute for a caring adult who is tuned into the needs and interests of the individual child.

Girl Scouts slate annual food fest

The Girl Scouts of Hancock County Saturday will host their 6th Annual International Food Festival from 2 to 4 p.m. at the St. Clare School cafeteria.

All proceeds will benefit The Juliette Low World Friendship Fund which helps scouting in countries throughout the world.

The public is invited to taste food from various countries.

Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Any girl wishing to join a special Saturday troop may register at this time. Registration is $4 per year. The meetings will be held once a month, on Saturdays, at the Waveland Civic Center.

Bay High's '77 grads planning reunion

A committee of graduates from Bay High's class of 1977 is preparing a 10-year reunion to be held on Saturday, May 16.

Plans call for cocktail buffet dance at Holiday Inn on Hwy. 49 in Gulfport where there will be hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar available.

A family picnic is also planned for Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Buccaneer State Park.

A reunion letter has been sent to most graduates, in order for reservations to be made early for an accurate count.

If there are any 1977 graduates who have not received a letter, please contact Allison Manleri, 467-0430 or Lynn Dolese, 864-9118.

POST 77'S SIDNEY HEBERT PRESENTS SCHOOL TROPHY TO BAY HIGH ENGLISH TEACHER CARRIE SMITH.

Legion names oratorical winners

The local American Legion National Oratorical Contest was conducted recently at Bourgeois-Stieff-Hay Post 77, Waveland.

Contestants must be high school students who are citizens of the United States and who have not reached age 20, and they must give a prepared oration on some phase of the Constitution of the United States.

The National High School Oratorical Contest was developed to instill a knowledge and appreciation of the constitution in high school students and to promote the development of leadership qualities, the ability to think and speak clearly, and the preparation for the acceptance of the duties, responsibilities, rights, and privileges of American citizenship.

The contest is observing its 50th anniversary in 1987, which corresponds with the 200th anniversary of the framing of the United States Constitution.

The first place winner at Post 77 was Jennifer Cotte, a senior at Bay High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cotte of Waveland. She was presented a trophy and $100 savings bond.

Bay High School English teacher Carrie Smith accepted a trophy on behalf of the school for having the winning student.

Second place awards of a silver medal and a $75 bond went to Jesse Dupree, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Dupree of Diamondhead, who is a senior at Hancock North Central High School.

Dawn Hardy, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Thompson of Waveland, a senior at Bay High School, was awarded third place prizes of a bronze medal and a $50 bond.

Also speaking in the competition were John Dowden, junior at Bay High School and son of Mrs. Carol Shyoun of Waveland; and Karen Terrell, student at Hancock North Central and daughter of Mrs. Juanita Terrell of Pearlington; and Crystal Echols who is also a student at Hancock North Central and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Echols of Waveland.

Winners at the national level have received over one million dollars in scholarships.

This year winners at the state level nationwide will receive no less than $1,000 in scholarship funds. The four national finalists will receive $16,000, $14,000, $10,000 and $8,000 respectively.

Officials for the Post 77 contest were oratorical committee chairman Sidney Hebert, master of ceremonies Donald Decker, timekeeper Danny Carter, judges Pam Metzler, Mayola Rotherham, Clayton Thompson, Robert McClure and Lawrence Freeman, score tabulators William Rotherham and John Perkins Sr., and contestant monitor Floyd Breaux.

An orange tree may bear fruit for more than 100 years.
